

Wine list Fall 2018

Over FIFTY of the wines on this list (of over 250 wines) hail from the Pacific North West. Many of these wines have scored 90 or more with Wine Spectator, Robert Parker, Wine Enthusiast and the like but unless these scores have been drawn to our attention they are not noted here.

Cellar Cats are cork dorks. Wine is how we travel the globe without leaving home. This quality over quantity list takes us to Sicily, Spain, Sonoma Valley and South America. We love Global. We love Local. We love wine.

Bordeaux & Bordeaux-style blends (& then some ☺)

In Bordeaux, a wine-grape grower grows Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Petit Verdot, Malbec & Merlot. A bottle of red Bordeaux will be a blend of just those five. Sometimes just two of them. Or three. No matter. They are grown in Bordeaux. The wine is red and occasionally; divine (there are additionally rankings but we lack time & space for that wine cat chat). In literally-brained USA we prefer to KNOW exactly WHICH grape and in what proportions are in the bottle so we can predict in advance our opinion of said wine. Boo. Time tells us to trust our instincts. Don't read the ending. Just breathe a wine in, take a sip, wait, do it again. Below are some rock star red Bordeaux wines, but more interestingly are "domestic" versions. A blend called a Meritage (a U.S. invention, a hybrid of the word "merit" and "heritage" and pronounced that way) is the U.S. equivalent of a red Bordeaux except with the intention of being a superb example of its kind. What follows are red Bordeaux (blends) and Meritages and a few very delicious odd-balls that have almost followed suit but have rebelled just a little by tossing something unexpected in the pot.

2012	Kiona Cellars Red Blend (Cabernet Sauvignon/Merlot) Columbia Valley, WA	34
